

EXHIBITIONS OF THE WEEK
AND NEWS OF THE ART WORLD

THE KILN BY J. FRANK COPELAND

One New Show and Several Continued From Last Week Will Be on View—Crafts Society to Hold a Public Meeting—Club Notes and Personal

There will be one new exhibition to open this week at the Philadelphia Art Association, the Philadelphia Art Association, which will be the work of the artist J. Frank Copeland. The artist's work is a study of the kiln, a building which is used for firing pottery. The artist has captured the ruggedness and beauty of the structure, which is built of stone and brick, with a thatched roof. The scene is set in a rural landscape with trees and a dirt path leading to the building.

A YOUNG PHILADELPHIA SCULPTOR

Miss Mary Thompson will meet the Philadelphia Art Association on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. She will exhibit a number of her recent works, which will be of great interest to the members of the association. Miss Thompson is a young woman of exceptional talent, and her work has attracted much attention in the art world.

ALONG THE MAIN LINE

Benjamin Franklin and the many landmarks of the city will be the subject of a lecture given by Mr. J. B. Cope, of the University of Pennsylvania, on Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The lecture will be held at the University of Pennsylvania, and will be of great interest to the members of the association.

RAILROAD NOTES

The Philadelphia and Delaware Bay Railroad will begin its new season on Monday, May 11th. The railroad will operate between Philadelphia and the Delaware Bay, and will provide a convenient means of transportation for the public.
