THE FIFTIETH CONGRESS.

THE BLOW WORK OF ORGANIZING THE NATION'S LAWMAKERS.

The House Committees Will Probably Not be Announced Before January. Prospects to Expedite Business—Will There be Any Consensus in the Senate?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Although the House of Representatives is expected to get fully organized by the first of January, the election of officers is not likely to announce his committees before January. Mr. Carlisle is loth to talk about what he intends doing as speaker, yet he is so anxious in the new rules that he has a hard task before him in the selection of his regular standing committees, of which there are forty-seven, and the seven or eight special committees. He finds more impediments for places on committees this time than he did in the organization of either the last two congresses. It is barely possible that he may have his committees ready for an announcement before the holiday adjournment, but not at all probable.

Important at this time, if the proper members are placed on the right committees much may be effected toward tariff and internal tax reforms and the thousand and one things expected at the hands of the new Congress. It is barely possible that he may have his committees ready for an announcement before the holiday adjournment, but not at all probable.

ALGERNON S. SULLIVAN DEAD.

The Popular Lawyer Falls a Victim to Typhoid Fever. NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Algernon Sidney Sullivan died last night at his home, 30 West Elizabeth street. He was carried to his home in a carriage a week ago Saturday from his office in the Drexel building, and died of typhoid fever and congestion of the bronchial tubes. No arrangements have yet been made for his funeral.

Mr. Sullivan's death removes a gracious and unique figure from metropolitan life. He was a lawyer by profession, but by taste was more devoted to music, art and society than to the dry path of a legal career. The lawyer he was painstaking, thorough and above all, courteous and elegant. His voice was musical and melodious, like his name. He was born in Ireland, in 1816, sixty years ago, and was prepared for Miami university by a private tutor. He was admitted to the bar in Indiana, where the rough and ready practice was not to his taste. He removed to Cincinnati and became a prosperous lawyer in such company as that of Chief Justice Chase, William B. Grosbeck and George H. Pendleton. He was prominent in the politics there, but refused all nominations or offers of political preferment.

At the outbreak of the war, for domestic reasons, he came east and settled in New York. He soon achieved a reputation as a lawyer among the lawyers of the city, and joined the Democratic party. "The silver voiced orator from Ohio" was a name so applied to him. When his position became untenable he gave himself the leisure to go into society and take a prominent part in literary and artistic enterprises. He wrote for the Atlantic and The North American Review.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

HIS MESSAGE WILL DISCUSS THE TARIFF QUESTION ONLY.

The Document Will Not be Given Into the Hands of the Public Printer, but Will be Read from Manuscript—He Urges Radical Tariff Reform.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The president's message to the first congress of our second century as the United States will be unprecedented in the long record of such communications. For the first time in our history this message to a new congress will discuss a single subject. The president will refer to the tariff, and to the various departments, to report the various necessities of the country. The message will be much shorter than the public has been led to expect. It is entirely in the president's handwriting, is full of his characteristic expressions and is understood to be of his preparation, with a few corrections from his advisers in and out of the cabinet, from the first word to the last. It will not be sent to the public printer, but will be kept at the White House until the president has notified the congress by a copy of the manuscript to be read from the public hands. CHICAGO ANARCHISTS VERY ANGRY.

They Declare They Must Have "Beer or Blood" on Saturday Night.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—"Beer or blood" is the Anarchistic cry. "Beer or blood" must flow at the great demonstration to be held at Battery D army camp Saturday night, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the amelioration of the condition of the masses of the executed and imprisoned Anarchists.

The order of the mayor that no beer shall be sold is to be disregarded, and the courts are to be appealed to for an injunction to restrain the authorities from interfering with the sale of that fluid, which is the life and soul of anarchy. It is estimated that from 25,000 to 30,000 people will endeavor to gain admittance to Battery D army, and the violent Red say that if there is police interference there will be a conflict.

Unless the courts interfere the police will be on hand, and the first attempt made toward a violation of the express orders of the mayor will be summarily put down.

Not only are the Anarchists enraged at what they call an unwarranted assault upon their liberty, but the more conservative Socialists are excited. At a meeting yesterday twenty-three German singing societies and eleven Turn Vereine it was resolved to hold the entertainment and sell beer at any cost.

The question promises to be hotly discussed during the week, but no one has any idea the mayor will withdraw from the position he has assumed. The police are solid at his back and will support him to a man, notwithstanding that a large proportion of the force is composed of Germans, including the chief and many of the higher officers.

AGAINST AN EXTRA SESSION.

The Governor Throws Hot Shot at the Consolidated Road.

Governor Lounsbury has given his decision in the matter of calling an extra session of the Legislature for the purpose of abolishing the law concerning the elimination of grade crossings. He will not call an extra session and takes the ground that those of the 1900 grade crossings in the state, those which exist on the greater number of the railroads are not the cause of the present anxiety and alarm. "These railroads," he says, "have only a moderate degree of property, and any rapid abolishing of their grade crossings would bring to the roads, and perhaps to towns, a burden too heavy to be borne. So by any means railroads are concerned, there is no disposition in any quarter to urge a course that would result in financial distress, and there is almost universal satisfaction with the law which has been passed by the railroads commissioners, on proper petition, to order gates or flagmen at any crossing where, in their opinion, the danger requires it. There is little or no demand for any new legislation concerning the grade crossings of the railroads which have been mentioned."

The governor continuing says there is a conspicuous exception, and proceeds to give his attention to the Consolidated road. "Although he does not see it as his duty to call an extra session, he is not unmindful of the fact that the Consolidated road, in its petition, to order gates or flagmen at any crossing where, in their opinion, the danger requires it. There is little or no demand for any new legislation concerning the grade crossings of the railroads which have been mentioned."
