NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

JEROME BLUM was born in Chicago in 1884. After studying in France for seven years and exhibiting at the Salon d'Automne, he spent a year travelling in China. He is now in the South Sea Islands.

ENID FOSTER was born in San Francisco, studied under Chester Beach, the sculptor, and is now living in New York.

MICHAEL ARLEN, who resides in England, is a writer of short stories, and the author of The Romantic Lady, to be brought out in the fall by William Heinemann.

J. DONALD ADAMS is at present on the staff of The Sun and The New York Herald.

EMANUEL FAÏ is a young French artist whose work has not previously been shown in America.

WILLIAM CARLOS WILLIAMS is a physician, aged thirty-six, a resident of Rutherford, New Jersey. His father was a British subject; his mother was born in the French West Indies of French and Spanish stock. As a follower of the new school of poetry, he has published his work in various current magazines. He is the author of Al Que Quiere (Four Seas), one of the most remarkable books of poetry of the last few years.

STUART DAVIS was born in Philadelphia in 1892, studied with Robert Henri, and is known as a caricaturist, landscape painter, and illustrator. He has exhibited at the Academy and the Independents, and contributed to the exhibition of Humorist Artists a few years ago.

SINCE the war ROBERT LITTELL has been engaged in the investigation of industrial conditions throughout the United States.

As professor of psychology in the University of Wisconsin, JOSEPH JASTROW has attained an international reputation.
