

BY SUDDEN END OF WAR

Suggests Piece of Sculpture

By Mrs. S. C. Fuller

NOBLE FIGURE OF PEACE

Springs From Out Clouded Battlefields in France

Mrs. S. C. Fuller, Warren road, is at work upon a piece of sculpture, the idea for which was suggested to her mind by the sudden ending of the war. The details are not all worked out yet, but the vivid representation of life that characterizes all of Mrs. Fuller's work is brought out in a manner that makes the observer share in the artist's inspiration.

From the battle field strewn with dead and dying, with broken cannon and debris of the fight, rises a cloud, out of which springs a noble figure of Peace. The right hand holds aloft a large banner, in the left is the olive branch. The face, strong and spiritual at the same time, shows the suffering, agony and suspense of the years of the war, but with the exultation of the final triumph, and a clear, long, look into the future. Mrs. Fuller's thought was to show Peace, coming as it did, suddenly, out of a cloud, as it were, when we had expected to endure some years more of war. In the dim confusion of the battle field below, here and there a wounded man raises himself to look up and stretch a feeble hand towards the glorious figure, whose free lines, flowing drapery, its abounding life and the lofty conception of the whole, show in a striking manner the genius of the artist whose work

Continued on Page Two